FROM THE ORGANISER

IVO STANKOV

---

I would like to welcome you to London Festival of Bulgarian Culture, where the breadth, artistry and history of Bulgarian culture, will be showcased in the first festival to celebrate Bulgarian arts in London.

There are a number of reasons why such an event is taking place now in London. It is true to say that the general public in the UK knows very little about Bulgarian culture and, as a musician, I would add that it is perhaps especially true for Bulgarian classical music. The idea of presenting works by Bulgarian composers gradually evolved in my mind over the last few years, and became “alive” around two years ago when my wife and I decided that it was time that we, as performers and Bulgarians living in London, should do something about propagating our rich cultural heritage in arguably the biggest cultural capital of the world.

The programme in our first edition of the festival features mainly concerts, but also includes an exhibition, and two educational events – instrumental master classes and a violin competition. Some of the most internationally renowned Bulgarian musicians will take part, and works of the most celebrated Bulgarian composers from the 20th Century, their names mostly unknown in the UK, will be performed. But this festival is not confined to presenting and propagating our national culture and achievements, it is also about establishing a dialogue of fresh and new creative ideas and art experimentation between artists living in London and Bulgaria.

We are presenting three World and four UK Premieres, two of them written especially for the festival. Gwyn Pritchard, John Howard, and The Bridge Quartet will, through their compositions and performances, portray their views of Bulgarian music and what is more, will take a personal and distinct look of the unique rhythms and sounds which characterize it.

Martin Georgiev and Dobrinka Tabakova are two of the most sought after young generation of Bulgarian composers. Both are based in London, have won major prizes at competitions and already gained international recognition, and have established their unique and personal style. I am delighted that their works will also be premiered in our festival’s programme.

Lastly I would like to say a big ‘thank you’ to our friends, supporters, and patrons, who have contributed to this project. In this very challenging current financial climate, it is nothing short of a miracle that the festival has become a reality. Despite a few setbacks, and the general lack of financial support from the Bulgarian Government, I am thrilled that we have received significant support from both the Bulgarian Embassy in London, and also of many individuals and companies in Bulgaria and the UK. This makes me feel optimistic about the future - my vision for this festival is that it should take place every two years, expanding its diversity and establishing itself as one of the most interesting, vibrant, and dynamic cultural forums in London.

A WORD FROM OUR PATRONS

AMBASSADOR LYUBOMIR KYUCHUKOV

Culture is wealth, yet a wealth that increases when shared.

The London Festival of Bulgarian Culture, will give the British audience an opportunity to discover the beauty of Bulgarian traditional and contemporary music and art, and will enhance cultural and business links between Bulgaria and the UK. The Bulgarian Embassy is proud to support this festival and hopes you will enjoy its exciting programme.

DIMITAR BERBATOV

It is wonderful that London will have a chance to sample through this festival the Bulgarian culture which we are proud of. Our culture, the quest for education and the upholding of our traditions through the centuries are the reason for the survival of our national spirit.

I am delighted that through the talents of the children “Dimitar Berbatov Foundation” is presenting at the festival, the audience will be able to appreciate their special gifts, which certainly will carry over that spirit into the future.

SONIA ROUVE-OUVALIEVA

As Director of the Ouvaliev Foundation, a charitable foundation registered in Bulgaria for the promotion of culture in the name of the Ouvaliev family, I am especially happy to support this initiative. The London Festival of Bulgarian Culture, with its rich musical programme, is sure to be a great success.

FESTIVAL PROGRAMME

BULGARIAN COMPOSERS

Our concert programme is packed with many fantastic music pieces. It will feature works written by some of the most celebrated Bulgarian composers from the 20th Century such as, Pancho Vladigerov, Marin Goleminov & Parashkev Hadjiev.

THREE WORLD PREMIERES

John Howard - From Darkness Into Light

John Howard's new work called "From Darkness Into Light", is a Concertino for Violin/Viola and String Quartet inspired by and dedicated to the soloist Devorina Gamalova. It features a soloist who begins the work playing viola, and changes to violin at about the halfway point. The work is in one continuous movement. "From Darkness Into Light" is John Howard's 3rd quartet. The musical material includes folk song material from Bulgaria and other Eastern European sources.

Performance details:
Friday, 5th of November,
St. James's Piccadilly
The Bridge Quartet / Devorina
Gamalova – violin/viola

Interesting fact: For the first time in the world a composition features a soloist changing instruments – from viola to violin, halfway through the performance.

Martin Georgiev – String Quartet No1

Inspired by the Bulgarian Eastern-Orthodox Chant, and developing its modality and microtonal features through a method influenced by the technique of "morphing images" in cinema, this string quartet explores a conflict between the spiritual and the earthly in a concise yet dramatic narrative.

Performance details:
Friday, 19th of November,
St. James's Piccadilly
The Forte String Quartet

Interesting fact: 'Morphing Modality' is Martin Georgiev's particular compositional method developed upon features of Bulgarian and Byzantine Chant. Those traditions exhibit a unique approach to modality and music theory, distinctly different from both the Antic modal system and the Western modality which has been developed on its basis.

Kiril Todorov - Six new songs for the London Bulgarian Choir

Acclaimed composer Kiril Todorov (Emeritus Professor of the Bulgarian Academy of Arts and Science) has a unique style fusing folk and jazz into a thrilling new a cappella genre. He has written for some of Bulgaria's leading folk ensembles and his works are already a vital and favourite part of the London Bulgarian Choir's repertoire. To celebrate its tenth anniversary, the Choir commissioned the composer to write six special songs which will be premiered at this concert. The songs were crafted for almost a year in both Bulgaria and in London and we are very proud to present them to you for the first time.

Performance details:
Friday, 12th of November,
St. John's Smith Square
London Bulgarian Choir

Interesting fact: The London Bulgarian Choir is unusual by Bulgarian folk choir standards because it has men. The choral arrangements it performs are substantially rearranged to accommodate the male element. Kiril's new songs are the first major commission in the genre for a mixed choir.

THREE ANNIVERSERY CELEBRATIONS

We will be celebrating the 20th Anniversaries of two of the most renowned string quartets in the UK and USA respectively The Bridge Quartet and The Forte String Quartet, as well as celebrating the 10th Anniversary of the London Bulgarian Choir!

FOUR UK PREMIERES

Gwyn Pritchard – “In The Silence of Turned Earth” for soprano, violin, and string orchestra (text by Imogen Robertson)

In the Silence of Turned Earth was composed for the present performers, and is a response to the suggestion that the piece should in some way relate to Bulgarian music. Although there are no audible, direct references to any specific features of traditional Bulgarian music, the composition of the work was nonetheless effected by the composer's experience of listening to a large amount of Bulgarian folk music. The text, specially written by Imogen Robertson, also touches on a traditional Bulgarian theme.

Interesting fact:

The World Premiere of this work with Sofia Soloists and Stankov Ensemble was performed on 16th of September 2010 in Sofia, as part of the celebrations of Day of Sofia.

Performance details:

Friday, 26th of November,
St. James's Piccadilly
Sofia Soloists Chamber Orchestra,
Vania Vatrlova-Stankov - soprano,
Ivo Stankov - violin

Dobrinka Tabakova - Dawn-Day from Sun Triptych

Dawn is the first of three pieces making up the triptych Dawn-Day-Dusk. It represents sunrise with low, rich chords in the orchestra, which ascend throughout the pieces with decorated solos which lead the progress. Day then takes over, with insects buzzing in sun drenched meadows, reflected in the textures of the orchestra and soaring solos like bird song. The work is written for Gidon Kremer, Kristine Blaumane and Kremerata Baltica in celebration of the orchestra's 10th anniversary and Gidon Kremer's 60th birthday.

Interesting fact:

Kristine Blaumane, to whom the work is officially dedicated, will be performing it on the night!

Performance details:

Friday, 26th of November,
St. James's Piccadilly
Sofia Soloists Chamber Orchestra,
Kristine Blaumane - violoncello,
Ivo Stankov - violin

Parashkev Hadjiev – Four Songs for Soprano and string orchestra (arranged by Plamen Djouroff)

Written originally for soprano and string quartet by Hadjiev, this work was rediscovered recently by Maestro Plamen Djouroff who orchestrated it especially for the commemoration concert of the Day of Sofia Celebrations this year. It was performed by Sofia Soloists and Vania Vatrlova-Stankov to critical acclaim and we are delighted to feature its UK Premiere at the festival.

Interesting fact:

Parashkev Hadjiev is one of the most frequently staged and most prolific Bulgarian opera composers.

Performance details:

Friday, 26th of November,
St. James's Piccadilly
Sofia Soloists Chamber Orchestra
Vania Vatrlova-Stankov – soprano

Marin Goleminov - Quartet No 4 (Micro quartet)

Goleminov's Fourth String Quartet revealed him to be a modern master of the miniature. Throughout the work each diverse movement is dedicated to an individual compatriot. Goleminov as a violinist chose many colours through specific effects to impart maximum character to each short movement.

Performance details:

Friday, 5th of November,
St. James's Piccadilly
The Bridge Quartet

Interesting fact: Marin Goleminov's most famous ballet “Nestinarka” (which incidentally is also the most performed Bulgarian ballet of all time), was banned by the Bulgarian communist government for nearly ten years in the early 1940's, because it was thought that some scenes of “mystical nature ”were not in accordance with the regime's official cultural policy and shouldn't be performed.

AMAZING VOICES

Tuesday, 2 November, 7.30pm

Queen Elizabeth Hall

LE MYSTERE DES VOIX BULGARES

Female Vocal Choir which used to be known all over the world as The Bulgarian State Television Female Vocal Choir, is an ensemble of rare artistic gift and enormous popular appeal. The choir truly represents one of the most amazing success stories in music. Created in the early Fifties the choir's first mission was to record authentic and arranged music for multi-voice choral folk songs to be recorded and broadcast first on the radio and later on TV.

Marcel Cellier, the Swiss music producer, discovers the beauty of Bulgarian folk songs, folk singers, their unique voices and choral skills and in 1975 releases his first album – Volume I which he called "Le Mystere des Voix Bulgares" (The Mystery of the Bulgarian Voices). In 1987 Volume II was released, earning it in 1990 an American "Grammy Award".

It was at that time that the choir was renamed "Le Mystere des Voix Bulgares". In 1988, the choir began a world tour and has since performed five times in the USA and Canada, three times in Latin America, and given annual tours in most European countries. It has also performed in India and Hong Kong. Their CD named "Rituals" released by Nonesuch in 1994 was also nominated for a "Grammy". Warner Brothers also released Cellier's volumes I, II, III (1990) with sales of more than a quarter of a million albums in USA and over a million internationally.

The ensemble under the direction of Prof. Dr. Dora Hristova has for many years now performed in an exotic multi-voice style beautifully arranged songs combining folk melodies with sophisticated harmonies and compelling rhythms. The repertoire of the choir is drawn from arrangements created by the esteemed Bulgarian composers Philip Koutev, Krassimir Kyurkchiyski, Nikolai Kaufman, Petar Lyondev, Ivan Spassov, Stefan Moutafchiev, Kiril Stefanov, etc.

"These are the singers that won the Grammy Award and endorsement from such pop superstars as Paul Simon, Linda Ronstadt, George Harrison, Bobby McFerrin, Midori and many others all over the world. They create a crossover sensation everywhere they perform as listeners of all music faiths gather in the presence of sounds more strangely wonderful than almost any they have heard before... Everyone could consider himself richer in spirit for having heard Le Mystere des Voix Bulgares" (Chicago Tribune).

The singers transform sounds into strange vocal colours as if something other than human voice, perhaps some foreign instrument, is playing. The singers "jubilate, shout, ornament, form fast and perfect glissandos, let one crazy rhythm follow another and make their voices build the most daring chords" and "suddenly a listener believes he has heard an archaic world of sounds from times long ago", another sees "the marriage of the avant-garde and the Middle ages".

“DIMITAR BERBATOV” FOUNDATION PRESENTS

MARIELA APOSTOLOVA - 11 YEARS OLD

Mariela performs songs from all folk regions in Bulgaria, but her favourite ones are from Thrace. Her slow songs as well as her fast ones represent the folk music of the Pazardzhik region in a brilliant way. According to the specialists in the field of folk singing, Mariela has a voice rich in timbre colour, a wide range and she can easily perform sophisticated ornaments. At 11, she has a singing technique which was inherent only to the best performers of this genre.

She is a winner of many awards and insignia of honour in various national and international music competitions.

MARIA ENCHEVA - 16 YEARS OLD

Being brought up in the traditions of popular folklore, Maria took up singing in her very early childhood. Gradually she engaged her efforts in the performance of Thracian folkloric songs with their typical vocal ornaments. It is precisely in the Bulgarian national song that Maria discerns the unmistakable beauty of her home country and sees her life-long vocation. Student of renowned figures in the domain of Bulgarian national folkloric singing, and thanks to her unique voice, Maria has attained a number of awards.

THE LONDON BULGARIAN CHOIR

Led by Dessislava Stefanova

Friday, 12 November, 7.30 (doors at 7 pm)

St John's Smith Square

Westminster

CELEBRATING TEN YEARS WITH NEW SONGS AND WELL-LOVED FAVOURITES IN ONE OF LONDON'S MOST MAGICAL VENUES

"About a year ago, the wondrous Bulgarian choir appeared before us as if from musical heaven, a total delight, surprise, revelation... a shimmering vision of purest sound and beauty." Max Reinhardt, composer, presenter of Late Junction, BBC Radio 3

"A guaranteed stunning, aural delight." Time Out

The Choir was founded in 2000 by Dessislava Stefanova, a former singer and assistant conductor with the renowned Philip Koutev Bulgarian National Folk Ensemble. This vibrant and sociable group of singers has grown to win hearts and minds from the Yorkshire Dales to Bulgaria's mountain villages. Forty-strong, the largely non-Bulgarian choir has brought its repertoire of traditional Bulgarian songs to concert halls, nightclubs, festivals, rock concerts and even a barge on the Thames. The Choir marks its ten-year journey by launching six spine-tingling, newly commissioned songs by acclaimed Bulgarian composer Kiril Todorov.

Kiril is a master of blending folk and jazz into a sublime new a cappella genre. His new compositions and arrangements of traditional songs have taken the Choir on an electrifying musical journey – both metaphorical and real. Less than three months ago, the choir travelled to Bulgaria and performed the songs to the composer's friends and colleagues. This discerning audience was amazed and moved: from the joyous Sabrali Sa Se Nabrali, featuring the unsuspected talents of the singers on a variety of instruments, to the haunting resonance of Razbolyal Se E Mlad Stoyan – a dying hero's last words to his mother.

The Choir's notable achievements include winning the title of BBC Radio 3 Open Choir of the Year in 2006, being featured as one of Joan Armatrading's Favourite Choirs on BBC Radio 4 and performing at Westminster Abbey in 2010. The choir has collaborated with numerous rock, jazz and classical musicians, most prominently with rock band Doves at the BBC Electric Proms, broadcast live on BBC 2 in October 2009. The London Bulgarian Choir has released a beautiful album, Alyana Galyana and a Christmas Concert DVD. Members of the Choir sang on the award-winning soundtrack of the BBC's Elizabeth, the Virgin Queen.

The Choir would like to thank the BBC's Performing Arts Fund for the award which made the commission possible and the Bulgarian Embassy in London for its vital support and hospitality.

The Sofia Soloists will perform two UK PREMIERES - "Dawn-Day" by Dobrinka Tabakova, and "In The Silence of Turned Earth" by Gwyn Pritchard, especially commissioned for the festival. The concert will also feature the wonderfully melodic songs for soprano and orchestra by Parashkev Hadjiev, and the Pièce de résistance of the orchestra's repertoire - Sergey Prokofiev's "Fugitive Visions". The evening will conclude with one of the masterpieces written for a chamber orchestra - Tchaikovsky's Serenade for strings.

They have premiered over 100 works, some of them written especially for them.
